

1. Stronger and Safer Communities

Hints and Tips

- Set GSOs that are as specific and measurable as possible.
- Select indicators for which strong, reliable and compelling evidence can be collected. Factors such as the participants, type of activity and timescale will determine what type of evaluation is possible and appropriate.
- Refine generic questions as appropriate to suit your own audiences and activities.
- Allow for unexpected outcomes as they are sometimes the most interesting.
- Remember some GSOs may not easily apply to key areas of your work or may not be easily measurable because of the nature of contact with participants.

Key to mapping to the Generic Learning Outcomes (GLOs)

The letters following each 3rd Tier outcome indicate integration with the GLOs as follows:

K, U	Knowledge and Understanding
S	Skills
A, V	Attitudes and Values
B, P	Behaviour and Progression
E, I, C	Enjoyment, Inspiration and Creativity
